HE EAST TENNESSEE MOVEMENT-WHAT THOMAS IS DOING-AFFAIRS AT NASHVILLE.

[From Our Own Reporter.]

NASSWYLLS, Monday, Nov. 28, 1861.

We are in the midst of another excitement, consequent upon the advance of Hood into Middle Tennessee. At the head of 18, whole army, he is now but a short distance south of Columbia, and not more than 30 miles from this city. His advance has been very sudden, but it was not unexpected in the military circles; and more, it does not, in the least, territy them; indeed they have rather invited it. This much I know; one Paragraph of Sherman's parling instructions to Thomas was, that he should let Hood or north of the

NASHYILLE, Wednesday, Nov. 30.—A train arrived here last night from Chattanoogs, with a few wounded men and several rebel prisoners. Among the latter is Brig. Gen.
Young, of Cheatham's command. There are prisoners. Among the latter is Brig. Gen. Young, of Cheatham's command. There are no breaks in the Chattanoogs road though the rebel cavalry are prowling near the line. 500 crossed the track near Levergne, last night, 15 miles south of Nashville.

The garrison at Shelbyrille were attacked by a b-dy of rebel owalry on Monday, but after some severe skirmishing the rebels retired. Skirmishing at the front is of daily occurrence. There is no chage in Hood's position. In eyery skirmish is far, the federals appear to have had the advantages. Our forces have evacuated Shelbyrille, and it is, now in the hands of the rebels. Opinions are rife as to Hood's movements, and ample preparations have been made, or making, to defend Nashville should be attempt its capture.

preparations have been usade, or making, to defend Nashville should he attempt its capture.

LOUISVILLE, Wednesday, Nov. 20.—Hood, in his late repulse by Gen. Thomas, lost over 300 men, and beat a hasty retreat. General Thomas position on Duck River is a good one, and he will remain there until a gunboat expedition, now moving, shall have cut. Hood's communications on the Tennessee, by destroying htt ponton bridge. The late rise in the river was just in time to favor gunboat operations. The only fear is that Hood may, in the meantime, make a detour, and get off into East Tennessee to join Breckinridge.

NEW YORK, Wednesday, Nov. 20.—The New York Tomes Washington special says that Hood's movements in Tennessee seem to revest the intention of making his way into East Tennessee. The line on which he is moving would indicate as attempt to turn Nashville on the east side, and make his way to form a junction with Breckinridge. It is believed he will then essay the capture of Knoxville, which will give him railroad communication, vis East Tennessee and the valley with Lynchburg and Richmond. The successful issue of Sherman's movements will have severed communication between the two rebel armies, and Hood's procent campaign seems to be directed towards securing such communication by the line mentioned. Hood's army in this case would be in a position to join Lee's, should this move be some advisable.

By the steamer Marbie City, Capt. Trepadl, Cherk A. Storme, just arrived, we have Monnphis papers of the afternoon of the 29th. It seems that rebelemmissacies also commended burning operations at the South all well as at the North. The Builetin says about ten days ago Gen. Washburn received as anonymous communications which linted that the rebels contemplated inflicting some severe blows on Memphis. He did not attach a great deal of consequence to He suggestion but determined there should be no remissness on his part. He handed the matter over to the United States detective force with instructions to follow up the matter and give it a thorough investigation. The discretely was made of a most atrocious plot institucted by the rebel Government, to be carried out under the supervision of rebel agents. At last it became evident that on last Sunday night the compirators were about to carry out their nefarious design, and with the utmost caution detective officers and twalve picked men, belonging to the Sth Lows regiment, were one by one slipped into depot and yard, and carefully secreted. The night was intensely dark and there was a high wind blowing. All circumstances were favorable to the designs of the incendiaries. The Commercial's Washington special says Pryor's report of the capture of Macon is not believed as Gen. Sherman had cut communication with that place and the rebels at Richmond could have no information of the matter. Sherman probably avoided Macon and Augusta, and is thought to be marching to the sea coast. The rebels are doing all they can to impede his progress.

The Post's Washington special says Richmond papers of Monday are sillent respecting Sherman's movements, but show the rebels to be in great trepedition. There is every reason to believe Sherman is making his way triumphantity to the sea coast.

Some of the recently exchanged prisoners from Savannah, who have arrived, state that the people intimated that forces under Bean-regard and Johnston had arrived at Macon and Augusts, to oppose Sherman, but didn't believe he would encounter them, or that the military authorities would deelde in time where to concentrate their forces. There were only 1,500 men at Savannah.

The women of the South were ready to mbest to the surgical operation which should transform them into Amazons, shade erice their passion for slaughter, turned skulls into drinking cups and hones in to finger rings; the children of the South were to be led to the altar, and like Hannbal, take the oath of everlasting hatred to the Xankess; even Sambo and Cuffee among the cotton boils and rice swamps, shared the universal fervor and were ready to devote a new their backs to the lash and their togs to the tender mercies of the blood hound. The precedents of history were ignored and the world at large unaccustomed to such unanimits, the old powers which had learned to their sorrow, that there was always an anti-war party whatever might be the character of the war, stood by in blank amazement and witnessed this model example of unanimity. But the trouble was they could not see below the sunface. The shaolute and inflictible grasp that was holding together those elements was concealed. Jeff. We at the North were tomowhat amazed, for we started out at the fall of Sumter as unanimous as they but before the year was out found that we were lesing tenacity, and that particles were crumbling off here and three. THE TREATEN DEPARTMENT.
The Cinelinal Gaistic proposes and the Springfield Resublicon endorses the nomination of High McCulloch, Esq., the present Comptroller of the Currency, for the office of Secretary of the Treasury, in the event that Mr. Researden retires on the 4th of March next Mr. McCulloch is one of the soundest business men in the United States. dest business men in the United States. Insucial ability has been proven, first as dent of the State Bank of Indians and President of the State Bank of Indiana and subsequently as the head of the Currency Burean of the Government, to the satisfaction of all acquires of the country. We know that he possessed in the highest degree the confidence of Mr. Chase, and that Mr. Fessenden urged his appointment as Secretary, when Mr. Chase resigned. There are few men possessing the requisite qualifications for the office of Secretary of the Treasury in a time like this and enjoying the confidence of the capitalists of the country, but of this small number Mr. McCulloch is one.

"Nor shall say member of the General Assembly be interested either directly or indirectly in any contract with the State, or any county thereof, which he shall have been cheest, or during one year after the expiration thereof."

The Hon. S. A. Buckmaster, with, perhaps, two or three partners, has bought the lesse of the Pentientiary for the sum of $200,000. He was a member of the General Assembly from Madison county, and Speaker of the House of Representatives when the law was passed. He has become directly interested "in a contract with the State, authorized by a law passed during the time for which he was elected." He fills the bill exactly. We think it about time for him to diagonge.

Ax interesting material took places the White House to-day, between the President and one of his old Sucker friends. Just thirty-four years ago they first met, and under the foreowing circumstances:

It was interpring and the country had been deeded with rain and, of source, the bottoms had fallen rout of the roads. The little river of Ceaw had spread itself far and wide over the bottoms, so much so that the good people of Sangamon, then a willing of no pre-level of dangerous for man or consequence of the source of the sou

Fut the friendship formed at Sangamon was not forgoten. Young Lincoin frequently counseled the legislator, and finally borrowed law books from hin, which he kept by him in the still-house, and read during leisure moments. With his history from that time to this every intelligent school boy is, or at least ought to be familiar.

To-day the Sangamon boys had an interview—"How are you, Abe? how does it go to be President?" "O, well, its more than I contracted for." Not much court, style about that, but there's nobility in that cordial grasp of the hand—exciptocating at the White House in 1806 favors received on the banks of the Ocawin 1830.

"BITP."

Now that the southern part of your State has cast out her "feesh pota." has broken her isole-has immured her Alleina in that political obscurity whence no demagogne ever returns, would it not be well to have her rechristened and to transfer "Egypt" to your neighboring State of Wisconsin! If I missiake not there is a political awail up the lake shore, including Washington and Ozakie counties, which could do honor to the name. The fact that Mr. Ediridge vogreates and is re-elegist in this region must be sufficient evidedee to any well informed mind that the arts and actances do no longer flourish thers. That the good people of the swail—in which will-o'the wisps, of course, flourish—should believe in ghosts and should worship the spinix is not to be wondered at. And, by all means, let their section of country have the socient name to which its advancement in civilization entities it. Egypal yes, they'll like that; and how interesting it will be sor the future Howagii to stand on their pysanids of potash and survey the ravages of civilization. Will be not exclaim. where is summan course?

We have thus shown the position of the two main columns of the army on the 20th instant. The question naturally arises, Where is Sherman going? In what direction will be the next more? Gisneing at the map, it will be seen that within reach of the right wing is the great prison camp at Milien, where so many of our soldiers are confined, and to which many of the Anderson will prisoners were lately removed for greater security. Further on Ires Savannah, in which there are the ben thousand rebels lately exchanged and delivered to the rebel authorities, but who lie there unharmed and helpites, without transportation by which to retreat and with no army to defend them. In front of the left wing lies Augusta, the great arsenal of the South, whose importance the Richmond Engarder lately alunded to, calling loudly for liadefense; and beyond the Savannah River; and open to the invasion of both columns, lies South Carolina.

"Georgia and South Carolina," said Sherman, are at my mercy, and I shall strike."

It was not nitered thoughtlessly, and the holbed of treason is about to reap some of the fruits of her treachery. Before Sherman lies Charleston on his left and Savannah on his right. He knows whether or not either place is vulnerable to his assaults, and will wisely and deliberately decide which to strike. If other can be carried, he knows the harbor of Beaufort lies directly in his front, and that there there is a safety and plenty. He will pass through South Carolina—it is indeed at his mercy—and be will not fall to leave it desolate.

Mr. Sherrard B. Townsend, of the town of Rush, an old and respected citizen of this county, and a brother of H. S. and Geo. N. Townsend, of the same fown, was mirdered on the 5th of last October, while on his way home from Idaho. The following are the circumstances:

Townsend, of the same form, we mindered on the Sth of last October, while on his way home from Idaho. The following are the circumstance. Mr. Townsend left his home carly last April for Idaho, which place he reached about the last of August. Not finding the country as promising as he expected, he soon made preparations to return home. An old man about sixty years of age, named Joseph McMillian, from Montgomer country, near Pans, III., was at this time in Idaho, and on learning that Mr. Townsend was about to return home, he begged the privilege of riding with him, representing at the same time, that he had no money and no way to get home. Mr. T. had a good team of mules, and being a kind hearted man he was touched by the old man's story, and told him he would take him along free of charge. About the hast of August they started out on their long journey across the country, intending to cross the Mississippi at Dubuque. Mr. Townsend treated the old man very kindly on the way home, always addressing him as "father."

On the Sthe Of Coboof they reached Story county, Iowa, and, as night came on, they called at a house first beyond the village of Nevada, where Mr. T. purchased a cabbage and a squash telling the old man that these vegetables, tagether with some corned beef, which they had in the wagon, would make them a fine breakfast. They then drove along, and the people of the house noticed that, before reaching the village, they drove out a short distance from the road, to the bank of a creek, where they camped for the night. The next mering they saw the old man hist he and one good horse, together with the remainder of the outift, for $500. As the property was worth about $500, those to whom he offered it refused to purchase on the supposition that he had stolen it.

Angusta, Ga, the most important city with in reach of Gen. Sherman, and of the occupation of which we anticipate an early announcement, is, in a military sense, one of the most important cities of the South. It is situated on the southwest bank of the Savannah River, one hundred and twenty miles from its mouth, and has river and realized on the constant of the savannah and Charleston. It is handsomely built, many of the houses being spacious and elegant, and has a popolation of about 30,000 inhabitants.

As the capital of Bichmond county, it has a spacious city hall, court house and fail, while a government arsenal, powder mill hospital and several other public buildings, grace the city. A canal, nine urites in length, furnishing an immense water power to the city, and many important manufactories and rolling mills have been in operation herafor years.

The war has added new importance to these. The State Arsenal has been seliced and enlarged by the rebel authorities, and a large powder mill has been circled and an arrest of the city, and many important manufactories and rolling mills have been in operation herafor years.

Price, and particularly in the capture of Marmaduke and Cabell. The first branch of the subject the grim chieftain might have omitted, for it is conceded. The charge was orighally made by Gen. Pleasanion's Adjutant that no Kanesatroops, commanded by Gen. Cardis, had anything to do with the capture of Marmaduke. Gen. Lane seeks to prove by circumstantial evidence that they did. thus opening a wide door of controversy, which will be farriher complicated, probably by a General Order Issued by Gen. Cardis to his in the discomiture of Price. There is hardly a dispute as to the courage of the Kanasa boys in the preliminary battices and skirmishes ghich led to the final tastile on the Maries dee Cygnes, where such a hapi of rebel prisoners, including their two Generals, was made. Here it is claimed the credit of the setnal fight belongs to Gen. Pleasanton's command. The claim is disputed by Blunt and Cardis, but the controversy is not likely to result in any good, though it has undoubtcity stirred up military jentonises already.

The Provost Marshal General of this Department, Colonel Darr, has succeeded in stirring up an immense amount of personal hatred to binself amons the rebels. He is an excel-and at heart is a Radical Anti-Siavery man, yet for reasons of his own he does not fully accord with the Radicals of the State at large. Gen. Curvis, in this respect, will be preferable to Gen. Rosecrans.

were generally distributed through the camps and barracks.

The damage to the Pacific Railroad-by Price's invasion was so great that the means of the Company, raised for the purpose of completing the road to Kanasa City are exhausted. They are now before the public to raise another loan of $500,000 from the county of St. Louis to finish the road as designed. The invasion of Prices was thus a direct blow at the prosperity of the city. As some of the Directors of the Pacific Road are reputed secensionists, it must be interesting to their reflections to consider how dearly Sterling Price loves his own dear Missouri and her substantial interests.

Not one cost! They agree merely to furnish the convicts with guards, cheap prison food, and cheap prison clothes, costing them, perhaps, twenty cents per day for each man, while the services rendered realize the contractors from one to two dollars per man. The State has expended a million of dollars already to put up enclosures, sleeping apartments, work-shops, cooking and eating rooms, and the like; and the contractors get the use of the whole premises rent free, not even

THE NEW YORK PLOT-HER RESIDENCE.

We print elsewhere a detailed and interesting account of the diabolical attempt to destroy New York City by firing hotels and places of ammacment. The attempt, though unsuccessful, owing to the completeness of the fire organization and the egost of its members, was nevertheless the result of a thoroughly concocted plan, arranged with skill and unanimity. The programme was to set fire simultaneously or as nearly so as practicable, to the principal hotels and as many other public buildings as the incendiaries could get access to, in which they could execute their fendish designs without delection. Happily no loss of life and comparatively little of property crowned the hopes of the perpetrators of these crimes. The whole annals of villainy present no such bold and desperate wickdness as this. The heart sickens at the thought of the horrors which must have en-TIABY.

It is a well established rule of law, that fraud vitinites all contracts. This principle should be applied to the six years' lease of the Pentitentiary convicts, made to certain partice by the Legislature, at the session of June, 1868. It is the duty of the honest men in the property of the contract that the contract the statement of the property of the session of June, 1868. new Legislature to rip up and expose that dis-homest transaction, and if on investigation it shall be found to be the swindle now believed, it will be the bounden duty of the Legislature to declare it null and vold, and order the contractors are not satisfied with the spoils they have stready secured, let them sue the State, and collect their judgment if they can, as McAllister and Stobbens have done.

The public attention was so strongly directed to the treasonable and insurrectionary schemes of the Copperheads of the last Legislature, that the great frands perpetrated in relation to the Penilsuntary, were wholly overlooked, or scarcely noticed by the people at large, and they were so rejoiced at the prorogation of that infamous body that the grabs on the Treasury escaped due attention at the time. wickedness as this. The heart sickens at the thought of the horrors which must have ensued in those crowded hotels and museums, had not the fire been discovered in time to prevent the destruction of the buildings.

Hitherto, Wall street and Lord Belmont, the Copperhead press of New York city and Ex-Governor Seymour, have either regarded these plots as childish hallucinations or have boildly charged the Republican party with manufacturing them for political purposes. The open resistance to the laws in Coles county in this State, the treasonable developments of the Order of American Knights in Indians, the attempt to rescue the rebei pris-Take the case of the so-cated lease. A "ring" was formed, consisting of honorable (7) members and lobby vultures, to put it through both Houses under the gag of the previous question. A bill was introduced exacting that for the period of six years from June 10th, 1863, all the convicts in the Penisident Pen quiet resumed.

It is stated by the proprietors that a man, registering his name as John School, Md., took a room at this house about 5% c'clock, and that the smoke was discovered fasting from his room by the occupant next door. Upon the door being broken open, the room was found empty, the occupant having gone, leaving a black satchel with a bottle of phosphorus behind.

At five minutes of nine the St. Nicholas Hotel was discovered on fire in rooms 138, 199 and 180, attented in the middle building of the three on the upper floor. About the same time a fire broke out in bedroom 174, in the front building of the three on the upper floor. About the same time a fire broke out in bedroom 174, in the front building of the hotel. In both places the strong smell of phosphorus and an abundance of matches in the bed clothes, signified the fire to have been the work of an incendiary. The rooms were burned completely out, but the fire department of the hotel, under the superintendence of the proprietor, Mr. Hawks, succeeded in confining the fire to those apartments. Had it not been for the admirable arrangements for taking care of fires at this house, it would have been entirely burned down. The damage done is principally by water, and will probably amount to three thousand dollars, covered by insurance. The business of the house will not in any way be interrupted, the pariors, dining rooms, etc., not having been damaged any whatever.

SUSPICHOUS PERSONS AT THE ST. NICHOLAS.

A well-known cilizen, who boards at the St. Nicholas botel, was passing through the mvin hall last evening, on his way to his room, inst before the fire was discovered, when his stiention was attracted by the very suspicious movements of two men who were conversing in the hall. Approaching them, he beard one say, "It's all right," when both county in this state, the treasonable coveropments of the Order of American Knights in Indiana, the attempt to rescue the rebel prissoners at Camp Douglas in this city, at the time of the Copperhead Convention and upon election day, the constant alarms along the Canadian border, and the warnings of Secretary Seward to the city authorities just previous to the election to be on their guard against such piots as these, have been denounced as inventions of the opposition to further the election of Mr. Lincoln and this in the face of the diabolical suggestion openly made to the rebel authorities by the Richmond press that a gang of desperadoes could be found who would for a wufficient reward lay the larger Northern cities in ashes, and in the face of the accumulative evidence of the barbarity of the rebel leaders.

These men in New York have now had the clusice commended to their own lips. The rebel plots/sbread which they have sneered at have now been laid at their own doorways, and they have narrowly escaped a night of horrors which would only have found its parallel in the nights of the French Revolution. It was only some such visitation as this that could have convinced the recole of that parallel in the nights of the French Revolution. It was only some such visitation as this that could have convinced the people of that eity of the great overhanging danger. Rolling in gold and sheddy, arrogating to itself the combined virtue and intelligence of the nation, piling up its majorities by thousands in favor of the enemies of the Government, this piot unravelled suddenly in their midst we cannot but look upon as an act of retributive justice. It is a warning they will do well to heed. It has lifted the curtain and given them a glimpse of the incarnate devilishness they so long have sneered and laughed at.

Hereafter it will be their own fault if they are taken unawares.

The events of that night, moreover, are a warning to the whole country. They were alarm was given.

At twenty minutes past nine o'clock the La Farge house was discovered to be on fire in one of the bed-rooms on the upper floor, the bed being, as in the other places, saturated with phosphorus, and matches lying about in all directions. The damage was slight, but, naturally enough, the guests were thrown into a pante, believing that the whole structure would be fired. The flames were soon extinguished, the damage amounting to about three hundred dollars. The room in which the fire was discovered was taken by a Mr. J. B. Richardson, of Canden, New Jersey, who was out of the room at the time of the fire was discovered in a front room in the upper floor of the Metropolitian Hotel, but it was speedily extinguished by the servants of the house. An alarm was given, but before the firemen arrived at the hotel the danger had been passed. The damage here is estimated at $1,500. One room only was hiured. In this room were found an empty bottle, which had contained phosphorus, a pair of heavy boots and a valie. These articles, and the bottle, were taken possession of by Fire Marshall Baker. In the valies were found a pair of pantaloons and a pair of punching was of a

All the profile go into the capacious, rapacious may of the "contractors" and the "mig" with whem they divide. Pittman is also made Warden of the Pentientiary, so that he can do as be pleases with the convicts. It is understood that the clear profits on the lease for the first ten months, from a dimpse of the lease for the first ten months, from a dimpse of the lease for the first ten months, from and that the amount made from April, 1864, to November, 1864, being seven months, was the whole country. The fire here was discovered in a bed-room on the third floor, which had been engaged by a man registering himself as "Leutenant Lewis, U. S. A." Smoke being seen to issue from this room, a strong odor of phosphorus being at the same time perceptible, the door was immediately burst open, and in a very few seconds the fames were completely ex-ment to shield them after their return, it would be singular if they did not organize expeditions and raids for plunder, burning and murder. Our home traiters, thanks to the efficiency of the military authorities, are pretty well weeded out. Let us have the same zeal and vigilance in ferreting out open rebels. New York, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis and other cities, see full of their rebel spies and incendiaries, aided and abetted by notorious Southern refuses, who walk our streets and proclaim their actiments boldly. We call upon our civil and military authorities to mark these men and watch them. A thorough examination of the fugitive rebels now in the North would be a simple measure of prudence. Gen. ough examination of the fugitive rebels now in the North would be a simple measure of prudence. Gen. Dix's order of registry should be enforced here, and every Southern man and Southern woman be compelled to give an account of themselves. We are only playing with fire to disregard such a precaution. The treason that could undermine the Constitution's capable of accomplishing any villainy of which the heart can conceive.

New York city has good cause to examine well the position she now holds before the country. While ye would not abate a jot or tittle from the exertions of the good Union men within her limits, it is well for her to understand that the whole commercial interest of the country holds her responsible for that thirty-six thousand majority plied up in favor of Southern traitors. It is no excuse the the foreign element casts the vote, safe Baltimore, Philadelphia and Chiesco gain majorities in favor of the Government. They, too, have a large seeign element; but they have no wall street to control that element. They have no gold to equander in manufacturing enemies of the Government. The secession clique of Wall street, from Belmont down to the pettlest street curb broker, shape the political affairs of New York. It is a libel upon the intelligence of her merchants, that they cannot whilestand this influence. They must cut loose from it, or they will find themselves in the grip of a responsibility they would gladly avoid. New York City is now the only great plague spot in the body politic. Its vote goes to encourage treason, and to block the wheels of Government. The country will hold her to a strict responsability for her persistence in this direction.

An erroneous impression has gone forth that Gen. Sheridan has been created the semior Major General in the regular army of the United States, and that he has actually taken up Gen. PANIC AT NIMLO'S GARDEN.

Last evening, as Mr. Wheatley and Mr. Charles Pope were emacting the duel scene in the last act of the Consiesan Brothers, at Nibblo's Garden, an alarm of fire was raised by some person or persons in the andience. Whether it was done by accident, or was merely an emotion of fear exhibited by the individual or individuals we caused the alarm it is not known, but the scene that ensued teggrars description.

It was by the most stremous exertions on the part of some gentlemen, who in the midst of the scene of terror and confusion, retained unficient presence of mind, that the majority of the ladies seated in the dress circle, directly over the balcony seats, were prevented from throwing themselves into the parquette and maining and disfiguring themselves for life. Several ladies, almost terrified out of their senses by the supposed danger, fainted and the contract the entrance, immediately upon hearing the alarm, rushed into the street trembing and with dismay depicted upon their faces. A NEW DEVICE OF WAR,

The London Herald has the following ac The London Herald has the following a count of a new device of defensive warfare, which some mention has already been made. The wrought-iron shield for the Cronstance and the same shown on Saturday afternoon the guests of Sir John D. Hay and the Millw Company. Locked at in front, and especial so at a distance of 100 yards, it might be take for an ordinary work of masoury some for or fifty feet long, and ten or twelve feet high with three embrasaries in the usual place with three embrasaries in the usual place. with three embrasures in the usual Close inspection, however, discloses it cession of fron layers or bars, twelve by twelve inches, extending a third be impossible, in war, to say whether the material is brick, stone or iron.

The exact measurement of the front 1s 43½ feet by 10 feet and the 12-inch by 13-inch iron layers or bars weigh 1,600 pounds a yard. The side or end views of the shield reveal the chief mysteries of construction. The sides or ends reaemble an inclined capital letter A, the front of the shield being the upright or vertical arm of the letter, and the reas buttresses the inclined arm of the letter. Between the inclined and vertical or upright arms of the letter are the elements of strength and cohesion. First of all, it is seen that the twelve inches by twelve inches of wroughtiron layers or bars of the face or front of the shield, cohere by dovetalled projections and recesses—the modified tongue and groove of wood flooring—such as were first adopted in the Thorneyeroft iron wall. The tongue and respond with the tongue projection which fits into the grove, to form the face or front wall. The back dovetail tongue, be it observed, is, like the other, a homogenous perion of each layer or bar. The back dovetail tongue of each layer or bar. The back dovetail tongue of each layer or bar is then fitted, and firmly keyed into the dovetails of a corresponding upright on the face of the rear butresses to secure the whole. Nothing could be simpler, and as has already been stated, the cohesion seems efficient. Whether the cohesion would long sustain the pounding of heavy ordnance, is a point on which no opinion need be offered because experiment can alone determine. The rear buttresses are four in number, measuring at the base four feet and at the top eighteen inches. Such is the side or end views of the shield; views revealing a simply contrived cohesion of the heaviest mass of wrought iron that has ever been put together. Standing, last of all, in the mide of the shield, the three cunbrasures first attract attention. They are four feet in height, by two feet two inches in breadth; and the weakness which they give the shield is compensated by vertical box buttresses, one on each side of each embrasures. These box buttresses at the sides of the embrasures, are distinct, and in addition to the four rear buttresses at the sides of the embrasures are distinct, and in addition to the four rear buttresses at the weakness at the embrasures, and to do a officiently they have dovetails on their face which fit and lay into the dovetails, in the rear, of the front layers or hars.

Near the shield is stationed a short but massive 600-pounder iron carriage for the weakness at the embrasures, and to do a officiently they have dovetails on their face which, in addition to slevating the gua, acts in place of the guneration by sheer resistance from the screw, the acrew tightening the wheels of the gun reast on a great double screw, which, in addition to slevating the gun, acts in place of a compressor to check recoil. THE KORAN.

Changes in the Koran Demanded—Islandsm Threatened.

The Constantinople correspondent of the New York Bessing Post than writes concerning the Koran and certain changes relative to it:

THE KORAN.

The greatest change which the reformers claim is that the Koran shall be translated into modern Turksh and printed at so cheap a price as to bring it within the reach of all classes. The Koran, as is well known, is in its original language, the Arabic; and perhaps, on the pies that it might be dangerons to translate it into any other iddom, still remains a scaled book to all who are not well acquainted with that tongue. Its language is, how-ver, extremely pure and simple, and needs comment only when connected with the historical occurrences of the period in which the Prophet made it public. The Persons have, nevertheless, translated it into their language, and interpret some of its texts of at the particular three is no evidence of Christianity in any, of these demands—though it cannot now be foreseen how far they may endeavor or desire to reconcile Islamism with Christianity.

tamity there is no evidence of Christianity in any of these demands—though it cannot now be foreseen how far they may endeavor or desire to reconcile Islamism with Christianity.

The Saltan of the Ottoman Empire is, as you are well aware, also the Caliph, or successor to the Prophet. He is said to be a very conscientious Museulman; and neither drieks not smokes, and moreover has but one legal wife. His title to that character may be somewhat weak, and is faitly denied by the Persans, who hold that it is only hereditary in the family of the Prophet's nephew and son-in-law. Asil. But in point of fact, he is the Caliph, and as such is in duty bound to maintain the Jeham faith, as much so as it is that of the President of the United States to uphold the Union. It cannot be supposed that he witnesses the demands of the reformers with much satisfaction, as any deviation from his interpretation of the Saith weakens his own hold upon the mends of his poople.

Watts has gone there to effect the release on parole of a like number of our officers. Of the ninety-five, forty-six were in command of negrotroops. The highest in command is Col. W. Campbell, who commanded the 110th U. S. Negro Infantry, and who surrendered the fort to Gen. Forrest. His fellow officers pronounce him a coward, and say that as soon as he reaches the Federal tines he will be court-martialed and eash leved. They also tell us a joke upon him, that when invited by Forrest to roview his troops, and judge for himself of his ability to take the fort, that Forrest, by some skillful manceuver, caused the same troops to be

It appears that the Florida arrived at Bahla at 9 p. m. on the 4th of October, having put in at that port for a supply of stores and coals, and to effect some slight repairs in her machinery. Soon after she had anchored in the outer harbor a boat went slongside and demanded the name of the vessel. The answer was given, "The Confederate States steamer Florida," and a person in the boat celled out, "This boat is from her Britannic Majesty's steamer Curley." On the morning of the 5th the Florida was visited by a Brasillian naval officer, to whom Capt. Morris stated his requirements, and the officer told the Captain that he would carry his message to the Governor of the Province, but until an answer was received from that official the Florida must not communicate with the shore.

At 19 eclock at noon a letter from the Governor was received by Capt. Morris, informing him that he was then ready to receive him. The Captain immediately went on shore and had an interview with the Governor, who informed him that he would be allowed forty-eight hours to get in stores and coal, and that should the repairs require a longer time he would grant in extension for that purpose. The Governor was very urgent in his request that Capt. Morris would strictly waters.

Capt. Morris gave the Governor the same assurance on the part of the Florida. An Admiral of the Brazilian navy was presented urige the interview, and when Capt. Morris requested that he should be allowed to move the on the morning of the 6th a Mr. De Vidiky went on board the Florida, having received a letter from the United States Consul, enclosing one to Captain Morris, Mr. De Vidiky read to the Captain Morris and offering to captain to deliver the enclosed challenge to Captain Morris, and offering to use his influence with the Brazilian Government to have the Florida fitted out quickly if he would accept the challenge, to go out and fight the Wachasett.

The letter to Captain Morris was improperly directed as before, and that gentleman declined to receive it, but told Mr. De Vidiky to say that he had come to Bahla for a special purpose, which being accomplished, he should leave again—that he should neither seek nor avoid a conject with the Wachasett, but should he fifted her, he would try to desirey her.

Having received this answer Mr. De Vidiky left.
